

Courses for Freshmen

UN1105 Principles of Economics

Students who do not have advanced placement for Principles of Economics should take the course during their freshman year. There are no pre-requisites for Principles. The course is offered three times each semester. The fall schedule is:

Section 1: MW	8:40 – 9:55	Gulati
Section 2: TR	2:40 – 3:55	Noor
Section 3: MW	11:40 – 12:55	Bjorke

UN3213 Intermediate Macroeconomics

Students who have completed Principles or who have advanced placement for Principles and who are taking Calculus III may take Intermediate Macro. The course is offered twice in the fall and will be offered again in the spring:

Section 1: MW	1:10 – 2:25	Gouin-Bonenfant
Section 2: MW	2:40 – 3:55	Gouin-Bonenfant
Section 3: TR	2:40 – 3:55	Alonso

UN2105 The American Economy (Fall Semester only)*

Students who have completed Principles or who have advanced placement for Principles may take the American Economy in the fall semester. The course surveys issues of American domestic policy such as income distribution, business cycles, and the labor market.

UN2257 Global Economy (Spring Semester only) *

Students who have completed Principles or who have advanced placement for Principles may take the Global Economy. The course is an introduction to the fields of international trade, international finance, development and transition economies.

* Students in the joint majors or the major in financial economics may not take any 2000 level courses for credit towards their major requirements.